Glen Taggart Award for Community Contribution to International Understanding

Nomination Solicitation

The Glen Taggart Award for Community Contribution to International Understanding is given to one or more citizens of the State of Michigan (other than Michigan State University staff and international alumni) who have made a distinct and sustained contribution to international understanding in their respective communities or in the state at large.

The award is named for the first dean of International Studies and Programs at MSU. Nominees might include teachers, clergy, writers or artists, members of volunteer or service organizations, or public servants. Please note that these professions and organizations are only suggestions. Other individuals from a variety of community areas are eligible for the award.

The aim of the award is to extend public recognition to people not attached to MSU who give their time, energy, and imagination to the work of promoting knowledge of and concern for all the peoples of the world.

The completed nomination includes the Nomination Form with:

- » The nominator's statement. The nominator should describe the nominee's leadership and community contributions to international understanding.
- » The nominee's curriculum vitae or resume, and
- » A maximum of three letters of support
